

PROJECT 4: DATA VISUALIZATION

Turning Raw Data Into Boardroom-Ready Insights

Business Operated Stable Through 2023 - $552,643 Revenue, 510 Orders

$552,643.24

2023 Revenue

510

2023 Orders

$1,083.61

Avg Order Value

1,200

Total Orders

Source: orders table (1,200 rows, 14 columns), 2.5 years of data (Jan 2023 – Jun 2025)

Revenue Declined 13.1% in 2024 - Q4 Dropped 22.2%

↓ 13.1%

2024 Revenue Decline

↓ 22.2%

Q4 2024 vs Q4 2023

↓ 4%

AOV Erosion per Year

So what: The decline is systemic, not seasonal — 3 of 4 quarters declined

Three Actions to Reverse the Decline by Q4 2025

01

Rebuild Q4 Strategy

02

Lift AOV Through Bundling

03

Convert One-Time Buyers

Each action targets a specific driver of the decline

Revenue Declined 13.1% in 2024 - Q4 Recovery Is Critical

So what: Q4 2025 recovery determines whether the full-year decline reverses or compounds

Mid-Year Demand Spike

So what: Inventory and staffing should scale up ahead of May/June each year

Sunday Tops Order Volume at 186 Orders

So what: Shift customer service to cover Sunday peaks

Pricing Drives Order Value

Pricing Drives Order Value (r = 0.72)

So what: Bundling higher-priced items is the fastest lever to lift AOV

Next Steps - Stop the Decline by Q4 2025

Key Insights

- Revenue declined 13.1% in 2024, with Q4 falling 22.2% year-over-year
- 3 of 4 quarters were down, not just seasonal
- Pricing correlates strongly with order value ($r = 0.72$), supporting a bundling strategy

Action	Owner
Rebuild Q4 Strategy	Sales
Lift AOV Through Bundling	Merchandising
Convert One-Time Buyers	Marketing